Hello there students enrolled in Econ 228!

Congrats on your internship this Spring2026! We hope that as your internship unfolds this Spring, you are feeling proud of your accomplishments and probably a little exhausted 😊 Attached here is a document all of you should be familiar with already! It details what you needed to submit to qualify for the internship credit AND what is required of you to earn your passing credit for Econ 228. I'll reiterate it for you.

On Friday, May 1st at 10AM CST you will submit to econadvise@ssc.wisc.edu the following:

1. Professionally written letter from YOU detailing what you learned at your internship- your duties/obligations/tasks included- and how it relates to your Economics experience in class. Ideally, you'll relate theories taught in 301/302 but really anything "econ related" counts! Be thorough, detailed, and reflective. This letter will be reviewed by Professor Dan Quint who will either give you a Pass or a Fail based upon what you write. This pass/fail grade will be added into the grade book.
2. A letter from your supervisor detailing and confirming that you did, indeed, do the work you signed up for! Meaning you didn't get this internship and washed cars instead 😊 This doesn't have to be too fancy- but something written on company letterhead with your supervisors' signature is best. Please work with me directly if you think you will be unable to obtain this confirmation of internship completion.

Please submit these documents on this day (or before) regardless of when your internship ended as Prof Quint enters in all students' grades at once.

That's it! These documents are both to be submitted the last day of Econ 228's session this Spring2026 to Econadvise@ssc.wisc.edu, regardless of when your internship actually ends. It is your responsibility to remember to turn these documents in.

Lastly, if you are looking for additional preparation tools to aid you in your personal success at this internship, join this Canvas Training: Safety & Empowerment Online Training! This training focuses on self-advocacy, personal empowerment, workplace standards, professionalism, and bystander training.

Thanks much, let us know if you have questions, and congrats again!
